Jason Bonham is the son of drummer John Bonham, one of the original members of the legendary rock band Led Zeppelin. An accomplished musician by the age of 17, Jason began touring with his band Air Race, opening for bands like Queen, Meat Loaf, Ted Nugent and AC/DC. After his father died in 1980, Jason helped keep his memory alive by occasionally performing benefit concerts around the world. Jason represented his father when Led Zeppelin was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in January 1995, with his sister Zoe by his side. A series of collaborations with other musical icons followed over the next decade including a tour with the band Foreigner. Jason created the Led Zeppelin Evening and tours extensively to continue to bring the music to fans everywhere.
